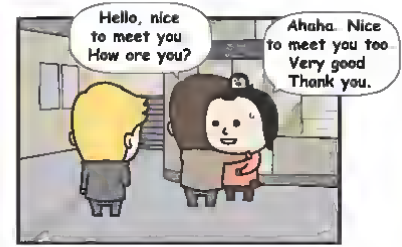
Penguin Loves Mev

In the UK

Hug Hug

8 years ago, when I met Mev's father far the first time in Korea.



I remember that I was surprised because he gave me a hug.

Because getting a hug from boyfriend's father is an odd thing in Korea.

But after that time, I hugged Mev's mother, bather...

...nan, auntie, uncle, friends and their girlfriends .

I've gotten used to this hugging culture.

This habit comes out any time.

Anyway, of course not everybody hugs everybody here too.

People share hugs with their friends, family and people they know.

But I think there is an exception

Last week,
we went to Gail and Andrew's for Easter holiday.

Other family members were already there.

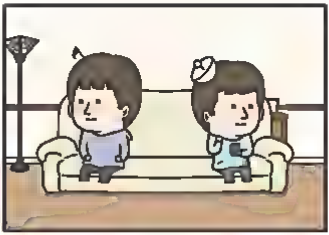
A bit later, Philip arrived.

He was saying hello to people.

And he naturally hugged his twin brother, John as well.

They hated hugging each other so much.
So I guess brothers are the exception?

Hold on



Maybe they actually like it too
